Directory of Contracted Community Programs

Introduction

In the early 1970's, the Connecticut Department of Correction (DOC) was one of the first in the nation to establish contracts with private non-profit agencies to provide residential and nonresidential supervision and treatment/services for offenders. During the last several years, the DOC has significantly expanded residential capacity and increased the number of nonresidential programs. The DOC's newly adopted Mission Statement emphasizes the responsibility to provide "offenders with opportunities that support successful community reintegration".

Under current contract are 49 residential programs with a total of 1,209 halfway house beds. In addition, the DOC funds 39 nonresidential programs that work in collaboration with parole officers to provide treatment of sex offenders, domestic violence services, substance abuse treatment, mental health treatment, vocational and employment assistance, and other re-entry services.

This Directory provides a brief program description which summarizes essential information of each DOC contracted community program. Included in the Directory is a listing of Alternative To Incarceration (AIC) programs, primarily funded by the Court Support Services Division (CSSD) of the Department of Judicial Services. These AIC programs components are utilized by the Parole and Community Services Division and serve a key role in the effective provision of services to offenders. The Directory also provides information on the DOC Community Addiction Services unit which, in partnership with parole officers, provides substance abuse treatment/services.

Agency Name: Families in Crisis

Program Director: Rene Rodriguez

E-mail Address: Rodriguez@familiesincirisis.org

Other Contacts: Joyce Betts

betts@familiesincrisis.org

Area Served: Greater Waterbury

Eligibility: Individual couple or multi-couple group treatment is offered to those couples who voluntarily choose to stay together or to offenders and their new partner. Participation is based on the inmate satisfactorily completing the 26-session domestic violence group, or sufficient progress as assessed by the group leaders prior to completing the group, and victim/partner participation in outreach services. Ultimate authority for proceeding to couple's treatment will reside with Parole and Community Services.

Length of Program: 12 Weeks/2 times weekly

Description of Community providers will implement the Virginia Tech Couples Counseling Services Offered: Project Model, including the Domestic Violence Focused Couples Treatment:

Individual and Multi-Couple Treatment Manuals designed by Stith, McCollum, Rosen and Locke (2006). This solution focused program (Stith et al, 2006) supports and expands upon the philosophy currently utilized in the collaborative domestic violence programming between community-based providers and DOC.

The overarching goal of the couples program is to cease all forms of violence in the relationship.

The program structure consists of three stages. The first stage involves a six-week psycho-educational component which incorporates multi-couple and gender specific sessions designed to "establish the context for change". The second and third stages of the program are designed to "enhance the non-violent relationship" and "solidify change". These stages involve up to 12 multi-couple, 90-minute sessions and address such topics as contracting for no-violence, defining abuse, understanding the cycle of violence, safety planning, developing empathy, stress management, conflict resolution, solidifying the non-violence commitment and anticipating challenges.
